This is the consolidated final list of additions and updates for Issue 25 of the ONIX for Books codelists. These changes were ratified by the ONIX International Steering Committee at its meeting during London Book Fair 2014.

Code 27 is intended for use with books used in language education, for example a book in English which is intended specifically for Spanish-speaking learners of English, as opposed to learners whose native language is French or Italian. Note this is only required where the book is wholly in English and where it is also customised in some way. If the book has passages (for example an introduction) in Spanish (and therefore both Spanish and English are listed in <Language>) then this code is optional but need not be used. If the book is suitable for learners of English without regard to their native language, then this code should not be used.
